Art Unit: 1746

1. The indicated allowability of claims 4-6, 13-17 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Phillips et al., Haberstump, King, Wendt, Hagopian.

Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 2-5 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wendt (U. S. Pat. No. 3,465,549) in view of either Haberstump (U. S. Pat. No. 2,358,507) or Hagopian (U. S. Pat. No. 2,188,684).

Re claim 4, Wendt is cited disclosing a washing machine comprising:

a housing (12);

a conveying configuration disposed in said housing and moving laundry in a circulatory path within said housing; and wherein said conveying configuration is a conveying belt or a conveying chain that differs from the claim only in the recitation of the fan being disposed in the housing. The patents to Haberstump and Hagopian are each cited disclosing in a washing machine, the arrangement of providing a fan (189 in Haberstump and 63 in Hagopian) for drying the cleaned articles after washing of the same in the housing. It therefore would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to modify the drying means of Wendt, to be a fan as taught by either Haberstump or Hagopian, for the purpose of forcing the drying air towards the articles being treated and since this is merely a substitution of equivalents. It is old and well in the washing art to employ forced air-drying means for quickly removing moisture from washed articles. Re claims 2, 3, 5 and 17, Wendt discloses all of the claims subject matter.

4. Claims 6, 7 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over King (U. S. Pat. No. 3,465,549) in view of either Haberstump or Hagopian.

Re claims 6 and 7, King is cited disclosing a washing machine, comprising;

a housing (4);

a conveying configuration disposed in said housing and moving laundry in a circulatory path within said housing; and wherein said conveying configuration at least one of keeps the laundry stationary, moves the laundry into a constant-speed circulatory path, and executes a reciprocating movement dependent upon a processing operation to be carried out (see page 3, lines 14-26) that differs from the claim only in the recitation of the a fan disposed in said housing. Haberstump and Hagopian are cited disclosing the arrangement of providing a fan in the housing as claimed. It there would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to modify the device of King to include a fan as taught by either Haberstump or Hagopian, for the purpose of drying the washed articles as is common in the art. Re claim 11, to employed compress air is deemed to be a substitution of equivalents.

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 1746

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claim 13 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Haberstump.

Re claim 13, Haberstump is cited disclosing washing machine, comprising:

a housing;

a conveying configuration disposed in said housing and moving laundry in a circulatory path within said housing;

a fan disposed in said housing, and a rinsing-water container (see page 4, right col. Lines, 31-33) disposed at said housing, said container being a heat exchanger (inherently).

7. Claims 14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Haberstump in view of Philips et al. (U. S. Pat. No. 2,329,674).

Claim 14 defines over the applied prior art only in the recitation of the double-walled container. Nonetheless, to employ a double-wall container is deemed to be a mere duplication of parts (see MPEP 2144.04 REVERSAL, DUPLICATION OR RE-ARRANGEMENT OF PARTS)/. However, Phillips discloses the double-walled container as claimed. It therefore would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to modify the container in Haberstump, to be double-walled AS TAUGHT BY Phillips, for the purpose of preventing heat loss as is common in the art. This is also applicable to the double-wall housing as claimed in claim 15.

Art Unit: 1746

8. Claims 8-10, 12 and 16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. In Jacobsen et al. Sadwith, Smith, and Rosenberg et al., note the washing means.
